Brad Chambers is a litigation shareholder and serves as chair of the Logistics, Energy and Manufacturing Litigation Group. Mr. Chambers is the former office managing shareholder of Baker Donelson's Houston office and a former member of the Firm's board of directors.

Mr. Chambers represents clients in high stakes litigation and trials throughout Texas, across the United States, and internationally. Mr. Chambers also provides counsel to executives and business owners on strategic planning, acquisitions, and divestitures.

For more than 25 years, Mr. Chambers has represented clients in a variety of industries, including financial services, construction, energy, and insurance in complex litigation, including catastrophic and mass tort claims. His trial experience includes both federal and state courts, as well as jurisdictions outside of Texas and the United States. In addition to his trial practice, he advises clients during all aspects of the business life cycle from start-up, acquisition, restructuring, and divestiture, with an emphasis on strategic planning.

Representative Matters

Commercial and High Exposure Litigation

- Defending a national leader in ambulatory surgical care against a former physician's allegations related to rights and duties under medical bylaws and security interest agreement during an investigation by the medical board. Allegations also involved reporting requirements to the National Practitioners Data Bank; breaches of contract, the duty of good faith and fair dealing, and fiduciary duty; fraud under the Texas Securities Act; and defamation.
