Melissa Vest concentrates her practice in labor and employment matters and commercial disputes.

As a member of the Labor and Employment Group, Melissa Vest focuses her practice on the representation of employers in all aspects of employment issues. Melissa's experience in labor and employment law includes defending clients against allegations of discrimination and providing position statements to EEOC charges. She also counsels clients on employee handbooks and policies and employment agreements, including the enforcement and compliance of restrictive covenants.

In addition, Melissa represents clients in a wide variety of commercial litigation matters with an emphasis on breach of contract claims, insurance coverage disputes, and premises liability matters.

Melissa also assists clients in financial services litigation. She has defended multiple banks, mortgage companies, and mortgage servicers against allegations of wire fraud, breach of contract, and breach of fiduciary duty claims, as well as legal representation regarding foreclosure issues and quiet title claims.
