Law360 Q&A with Labor & Employment Department Vice Chair David Gevertz

David Gevertz talks with Law360 about his career and his labor and employment practice practice, including important issues related to labor and employment law. Mr. Gevertz comments, "The heightened pleading standards issued by the Supreme Court in the Twombly and Iqbal cases six years ago have proven enormously useful to defendants when responding to bare-bones complaints and shotgun pleadings. With those two cases, the Supreme Court rejuvenated the motion to dismiss as an important tool for defendants seeking to rein in the cost of defense."
