

PRESS RELEASE

Baker Donelson Adds Corporate and Commercial Real Estate Attorney Justin S. Daniels

August 15, 2012

(Atlanta, GA/August 15, 2012) Justin S. Daniels has joined the Atlanta office of Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC.

Mr. Daniels, who joins as shareholder, provides corporate and commercial real estate advice to fast growing privately held entrepreneurial businesses. His corporate practice consists of representing businesses and business owners in all aspects of their operations from structuring new ventures, advising on acquisitions and divestitures and reviewing and negotiating key vendor, franchise, employment and customer contracts. His commercial real estate practice focuses on representing investor syndicates and commercial developers who acquire, develop, finance and sell commercial real estate.

"Justin brings a valuable combination of skills from the corporate and commercial real estate fields that is a tremendous asset to growing businesses," said Linda A. Klein, managing shareholder of Baker Donelson's Atlanta office. "His experience, which includes representing international companies with U.S. operations in Georgia, is a strong complement to our Firm's capabilities. We're pleased to welcome him to our team."

A frequent writer on corporate and commercial real estate topics, Mr. Daniels is a National Business Institute faculty member who has taught nationwide seminars to lawyers and accountants and has also taught at Kennesaw State University Small Business Development Council. He is a graduate of the 2007-2008 Leadership Sandy Springs Class and has been recognized as a Rising Star by Georgia Super Lawyers. Mr. Daniels holds both a law and MBA degree from Duquesne University.
