Baker Donelson Marketing and Business Development Team Named American Lawyer Industry Awards Finalist

September 09, 2024

The Marketing and Business Development Team at Baker Donelson has been named an American Lawyer Industry Awards finalist for the prestigious Best Business Team award, which recognizes teams that have had an identifiable impact on their organization.

"We are thrilled to be recognized," Adam C. Severson, Baker Donelson's Chief Marketing and Business Development Officer said. "Our Marketing and Business Development team has had a material impact on driving a culture of business development, engaging with our lawyers and clients, contributing to the Firm's financial success, and growing its brand awareness. I'm exceptionally proud of the work we do and honored to be among an incredibly select group of teams in such a competitive field."

The American Lawyer Industry Awards finalists and honorees are selected by Law.com and Corporate Counsel's editors and reporters, with assistance from an external judging panel. Finalists will be honored at the American Lawyer Industry Awards annual gala November 13 in New York City, where the winners in each category will be announced.
